Cookies

When you visit our website, cookies are placed on your computer, cell phone or tablet in order to improve or facilitate access to and use of our site.

A cookie is a small text file deposited on your computer when you consult an online service. These small files enable us to collect information relating to your browsing on our websites.

The cookies we deposit on our website:

- functional cookies

These cookies enable us to improve your browsing comfort by giving you access to specific functionalities that improve the fluidity and personalization of your browsing, such as adapting the presentation of our site to your terminal's display preferences (language used, display resolution...).

- statistics and audience measurement cookies

These are cookies that enable us to track the use and performance of our site, to compile statistics and volumes of visits to and use of the various elements that make up our sites (sections visited), enabling us to improve the interest and ergonomics of our services (for example, the pages most often consulted).

To carry out these studies, we use the functions of the Google Analytics web analysis service. If you do not wish this third party to deposit cookies on your terminal when you visit our sites, you can go directly to this link to refuse them: Google Analytics.

Here is a list of the cookies we use on our website:
